News and Updates first . . .

UPDATE: Rifts® Japan and Rifts® Lone Star™ arrived at the Palladium warehouse Monday, April 25, and are ready to ship. Both books are fan favorites and we were happy with the number of copies distributors ordered.

UPDATE: Rifts® Thundercloud Galaxy™ – shipped Tuesday, April 25, and is available now. PR copies went out Wednesday.

Sales for Rifts® Thundercloud Galaxy™ are strong and we expect they will increase as word spreads about the book. There is a lot of what I call "Wow Factor" in this title as well as material suitable for use in many diverse settings. We are seeing a trend of a large number of gamers purchasing one or two additional books with their Thundercloud Galaxy™ Th

Thundercloud Galaxy™

order; typically

Armageddon Unlimited™, Dimensional Outbreak™, Rifts® Japan, Rifts® Lone Star™

or

The Rifter #54.

Remember, DriveThruRPG.com is a good resource for getting The Rifter® #1-48 and to fill in your RPG library with first edition copies of Rifts®, Palladium Fantasy®, Heroes Unlimited™, and other game lines as well as books such as Nightbane® Book Four: Shadows of Light™ and both versions of the The Mechanoids® RPG (1985) and The Collected Mechanoid Invasion® Trilogy (1981-1983).

UPDATE: Online sales. I'm happy to report online sales have continued to improve for the third week in a row. They are still shy of where we would like to see them, but seeing a steady growth is welcomed. As we build momentum with the regular release of new titles, growing excitement should result in strong, consistent sales. There is already mounting excitement about the Rifts® Vampire titles (Carmen Bellaire, for one, can hardly wait), as well as Rifts® Lemuria, Robotech® New Generation™ Sourcebook and Rifts® Megaverse® in Flames.

UPDATE: Rifts® Vampire Kingdoms™. Ideas are pouring out of me for this book which is transforming as I work on it. I suspect it will be getting more new material than I had originally imagined as it progresses. Regrettably, I have spent much of my week in meetings, on the phone, and getting future books in the pipeline, as well as working on the new Palladium website. (Which I want to see go live by the end of next week!) That's okay, because I can feel the ideas percolating in my mind, and I'm pleased with the work I have done. There will be more about vampires, the Vampire Kingdoms, rivalry between the Kingdoms, life in vampire controlled Mexico, traveling in vampire territory and surviving, as well as adventure hooks and ideas. I think I'm going to take Carmen's suggestion and move the Traveling Shows section into the sourcebook or even as a separate sourcebook. I have a million ideas burning a hole in my head. Now, I just need to find the time to write.

UPDATE: Rifts® Vampires Sourcebook. This is a work in progress as my ideas and focus change with the Kingdoms book and as freelancer material comes in. It will offer ways to travel through and adventure in the Vampire Kingdoms and live to tell the tale, as well as vampire henchmen and the low-life humans who trap and destroy Vampire Hunters.

UPDATE: Robotech® New Generation™ Sourcebook. I can hear it calling my name, but I still haven't gotten to work on this manuscript yet. Soon. I did have a good talk with author Irvin Jackson about it and the next sourcebook to follow. Mmmmm, good stuff.

UPDATE: Rifts® Lemuria. I expect to get the finished artwork next week from John Zeleznik. And I've promised a trio of artists I'd get them art assignments by the end of this week. Writer Greg Diaczyk is burning with new ideas for future World Books and even a Nightbane® book. Actually, there are a number of yet-to-be-revealed RPG projects in development behind the scenes by several writers. A few were in the works before the Creators Conference, but several have been born since our brainstorming gathering – exactly what I had hoped for.

UPDATE: Rifts® Megaverse® in Flames. I want to start assigning the art for this book soon.

UPDATE: Dead Reign™ Sourcebook Three. I exchanged some emails with Nick Bradshaw about my ideas for the next 2-3 Dead Reign books, but they are all still in the concept stages.

UPDATE: Alex. Work is progressing well at Alex's house. With any luck, he and his family will be back at home in a few weeks. I also want to thank the generous Palladium fans who continue to send Alex checks, money orders and PayPal donations toward the cause. You are all too kind, and your generosity has touched Alex and all of us at Palladium Books. (For those who don't know, the house where Alex lived with his 88 year old mother, sister and two nieces suffered severe damage from a fire in January. The person responsible for the insurance had let it lapse, so things are difficult. Still, Alex remains optimistic.)

QueenofGhouls.com – Kathy Simmons has two new zombie creations going up in her store on Sunday – including one of her popular "crawling zombies" suitable for outdoor and indoor display. Kathy creates astonishing, real looking, life-sized Halloween props. I can't tell you how often these "ghouls" have scared the heck out of me. In fact, it happened just this week.

My real encounter with a zombie. I popped back to the office after running some errands Monday night. Everyone else had left for the day, so the lights were turned down in the warehouse and was all alone. I'm in a good mood and singing to myself when there is a loud thud.

The booming clomp echoed in the dimly lit warehouse and gave me a shock. It sounded like it came from Julius' work station not more than a hundred feet away. As I slowly approached, adrenaline coursed through my veins. It was as I was prowling around his work area looking for an intruder, that I realized I was behaving like a "victim character" from the original

Beyond the Supernatural RPG

(and countless horror movies); so I stopped, pulled out my trusty cell phone, and had 911 on speed dial, just in case. Tiptoeing around Julius' desk, a figure suddenly loomed at me from the shadows! Its hands reaching out toward me. "Aaaaugh!" I shouted. It was one of Kathy's zombies! After my heart stopped pounding, I saw that a heavy box had slid down from its perch, creating the heavy thud noise. It had also turned the zombie prop to face my direction when I turned the corner. Funny. I'm just glad I didn't press the button to call 911. It was ironic, because Mark Dudley and I were recently discussing how the Palladium warehouse/office was extremely defensible against zombie hordes. Ah, such are the silly adventures and musings of us idiots at Palladium Books. ;)

Behind the Scenes Report – Palladium Books®

We are back to riding the whirlwind and it is great.

We have so many ideas and projects, and such enthusiasm, that there are some days where it feels like we barely have a moment to catch our breaths. That's especially true for me.

When I'm not trying to write content for the new website (going live in the next 7-14 days) or trying to work on Vampire Kingdoms, or review manuscripts or outlines for new books, I'm on the phone or in meetings. Don't get me wrong, I LOVE it. The energy is electric. I love that I have writers and artists calling, emailing and keeping on me to make sure everything is moving forward. I love hearing the enthusiasm in their voices and seeing them push themselves to be better than ever. I am so excited about this year (and next) I can barely find the words. I wish there was a way you could tap into my mind for a few minutes to see everything we're working on and feel the excitement.

How can we do all this? With big hearts and support from the people who love and believe in Palladium Books. Cash flow remains up and down. While sales have slowly improved the last few weeks, they are still not where we need them to be. I'm sure we'll get there, especially with summertime and more new releases heading our way. Until then, we lack the full resources we need to create all the wonders we imagine. Paying writers and artists up-front is not an option. Thankfully, I have a staff willing to work long hours and dedicated friends, fans and freelancers willing to volunteer time and efforts and/or put in "sweat equity" to make our dreams a reality. To my never ceasing amazement, we have an army of such talented true-believers.

Case in point, most of the work on the new website by Rex Barkdoll and Thom Bartold has been free of charge. They love the company and want to help and to make a difference. Thanks guys, you're both awesome. Wayne too.

The same is true of the people working on many other projects. Mark Dudley is spearheading our exploration into launching a line of comic books based on Palladium Books' many expansive world settings and I.P.s. Mark and I have been researching, talking and planning for months. We meet every Wednesday and talk frequently throughout the week. Mark will help to develop the project, manage operations and wrangle artists and writers. His energy is contagious. My refrain, "Forget about what you think you know about comics."

The writers, artists, letterers and others on the comic project are likewise putting in sweat equity to get the line launched by next year. And we're not talking mamby-pamby stuff or vanity projects, we're talking top notch work, by top Palladium talent.

Carmen Bellaire and "Big Will" Johnson have volunteered to do a video-program to appear on YouTube that discusses the many books in Palladium's role-playing game lines. We hope to launch that by the end of May.

Alex, despite his own problems with and concerns about home and family after the fire, has been a dynamo – providing research, ideas and information on virtually every front.

World building is my specialty. World building and epic stories are what we do at Palladium. And you'll be seeing more coming your way via RPG sourcebooks and new mediums. You can count on me and Palladium's writers to develop the worlds you think you already know in ways that will please and astonish you. You can also count on us to create new realms of adventure and wonder. The full extent of which will be obvious as we make our push over the next 24 months to release one epic book after another.

All of us are dedicated Palladium fans ourselves; people who have stuck by Palladium through thick and thin. People who have dedicated themselves to unleash the full power of their imaginations and talent to launch a Palladium Books renaissance! To carry the company to new heights as we present new worlds to explore and memorable adventures to experience.

You are part of the process. Don't think we don't need you. YOU are the most important component in the entire process. We make these games and sourcebooks for you. Ask the guys and gals who attended the Creators Conference, I talked at length about how our books are designed for you. That we need to meet and then exceed your expectations. To bring you – the players and Game Masters – the most fun and dynamic role-playing gaming experience you can find. Palladium games and sourcebooks have always been built with you in mind. That, has been the secret of our success and survival. To know you and create the worlds and products you want. To do that, we need you to share your desires and let us know the directions you would like to see Palladium take. I need to know the types of products and subjects you would like to see. Help us with this, please.

- Why are we doing a new web site? Because you, our fans, have been asking us to do so.

- Why are we on Facebook? Because you, our fans, wanted us to create a Facebook page.

- That's also why we plan to utilize other social media like Twitter and YouTube.

As we prepare to take Palladium into a new era, we need your help and input more than ever. And not just from the guys and gals who are always quick to post or PM their comments. We appreciate and value those individuals, but we also need to hear from those of you who enjoy our games but usually stay silent.

EVERYTHING is open for consideration and discussion. New mediums, new products, new ideas for sourcebooks; which game lines do you want to see supported most; streamlining the game rules to be simpler and faster; Game Master support, convention support, promotion, and . . . well, everything.

We are examining and considering everything.

We are already working on many of those fronts, but need your input to meet your satisfaction and give you what you want. Send me and other Palladium staffers Private Messages and emails, write letters, post on the message boards, vote in the poll, chat about it with other Palladium creators on the message boards – especially with guys like Brandon Aten, Carl Gleba, Irvin Jackson, Matthew Clements, Alex Marciniszyn and Ma rk Dudley,

all of whom are good about presenting your discussions and views without filtering them with their own bias.

I think the people who attended the Creators Conference and others I've talked to on the phone have been surprised by the magnitude of what we are considering and taking on. Many of these areas are things I have been quietly thinking about for years. Part of the purpose of the Creators Conference was to issue a challenge to ourselves: If we're so smart and creative, then let's do something amazing. Let's create products that make people talk. Let's do things that shake up and revitalize the RPG industry. Let's do things to promote Palladium Books and reach gamers like never before. After all, Palladium is a true community – not just a manufacturer and customers – we're a family. That's a rare commodity, so let's cut loose and have fun with it.

In short, it is time to pull out all the stops.

And we need you to make that possible. Won't you help us? Tell what we're doing right and the areas you'd like to see changed or improved. Don't stop there, offer suggestions on how we can make those changes. Tell us what types of products you'd like to see. Should we be doing new T-shirts, coffee mugs and prints? Do you want to see other items? If so, like what? Tell us your ideas for celebrating Palladium's 30 Year Anniversary (an accomplishment worth celebrating). And fear not, our Number One goal is RPG products for all of our game lines.

Please continue to show support with your hard earned dollars in the purchase of new and back stock product, but also spread the word about the games and sourcebooks you enjoy. We'll try to give you one dynamic product worth talking about after another, but we need you to make some noise about them. Tell people about Palladium products. Point them to the new website when it's up as well as to our Facebook page (and soon, Twitter). You have more power than you may realize. Together we can grow Palladium Books.

One small bit of help is to take a minute to participate in our poll. Indicate what products and areas you would like to see Palladium expand into.

Click here to vote in our ongoing poll.

- Comic Books (printed)
- Digital Comic Books
- Webcomics
- E-Books
- PDFs of existing and new books
