

By Kevin Siembieda

By now, most of you have probably heard about Megaverse® Insider .

It's a special offer that lasts only two weeks and gives you the inside track to all kinds of product and opportunities Palladium does NOT usually make available.

I had planned to announce the Megaverse® Insider in this week's Thursday update, but there were not enough hours in the day to launch it and get the done yesterday too. I also lost four hours Thursday going to my diabetes class. It's two hours long, plus an hour and a half in travel time. (Yesterday's class was awesome. Very helpful and informative.) Ah, but I digress.

Weekly Update

The Megaverse® Insider offer is patterned after a new form of raising money to fund products and development known as "crowdsource funding." In the past, a company would seek out an investor or two to fund an entire project. In these tough economic times, these investors are hard to find, so someone (sorry, I don't know who it was) came up with the brilliant idea of "crowdsource funding" via the Internet.

It's simple. You make a proposal to the very people who know and love your products, and give them the opportunity to fund it. They are rewarded with a bunch of special products and unique opportunities for their money. This way, rather than get one or a few investors, you raise much smaller amounts of money from dozens or hundreds people who get a quick and tangible reward for their participation. If you get a couple hundred to several hundred people contributing, you can meet or exceed – sometimes vastly exceed – your goal. Heck,

Order of the

Stick,

popular web comic, has become the poster child for crowdsource funding. They set out to raise $57,000 for a reprint project and raised $517,000! And the offer is still going on. Of course, that's a record setting accomplishment and the exception, not the rule. We tip our hats to them, congratulations.

After I looked into traditional avenues of crowdsource funding, I started to get all kinds of ideas that I thought Palladium fans might go wild over. I bounced my ideas off Carl Gleba, who offered encouragement and feedback. Then he said something that got my imagination zooming: “What about some kind of insiders’ club?” The next thing I knew, the ideas were flooding into my head. Four days later, I had hammered out the details for the Megaverse® Insiders and launched it.

Megaverse® Insiders

The Megaverse® Insider program is a fund-raising proposition that enables Palladium to offer a wealth of fun and different opportunities, from getting your name listed in the book being funded to getting a PDF copy of the new release or a hardcover copy of the book. Palladium NEVER releases PDFs of new books, nor do we usually make hardcovers of sourcebooks, so these are something unique and desirable. It's also a way to test market such items to see what kind of demand there may be for such things.

The book we are raising funds to print is Rifts® Lemuria. I kept the goal low and reasonable at $12,000, but hope we'll actually do double, and we're off to a great start! In just the first 10 hours overnight, 43 people placed orders that totaled over $5,400. And more have been pouring in. Those numbers were updated this evening to over $9,400 in just the first 24 hours. Awesome! I am so excited about the initial reaction I can hardly believe it.

Money that exceeds our goal will go toward the development and production of other books, reprinting back stock titles, advertising, and paying artists and writers.

Super exclusive items. All items in the Rifts® Lemuria Megaverse® Insider offer are available for only TWO weeks. The crowdsource funding ends February 24, 2012

And when it ends, these special items are no longer available for sale. Please spread the word as we are only advertising this event online.

And that's the cool thing about this offer, the items are truly unique and rare. You see, after the offer ends, these items will no longer be sold. The Rifts® Lemuria PDF, the limited edition Rifts

® Lemuria hardcover

(with color cover just like the softcover edition) and the special

Rifts® Lemuria Collector's "Emerald" Edition Hardcover

are only available for two weeks. Only those who buy them now will own one.

Furthermore, I am only printing exactly the number of books YOU ORDER plus a few dozen extra for Palladium staff and special promos. That's it. So if 103 copies of the Emerald Edition are ordered, we only print 103 copies +24 extra. It doesn't get more "limited" than that. And that's what makes you a "Megaverse Insider" – you have RPG items not available to the average gamer. And by keeping the time period to make a purchase to a short

2 weeks

, it makes the items that much more unique, rare and valuable.

What is the Emerald Edition of Rifts® Lemuria? It is our usual black leatherette printed in a green foil. Think “Gold Edition” with “green foil” printing instead of gold. “Emerald” because the purchaser is helping to finance the printing and production of Rifts® Lemuria, so green for the color of American money.

Don't miss out! Read all about it right here. And don't forget, not only do you get cool product, but you're helping to make it possible for Palladium to release new product and reprint titles.

In Other News

My apologies for this Weekly Update being a day late. We just couldn't get it done on Thursday. I was at the office (after class) till 11:15 PM as it was.

I wanted it up first thing today, but we've been fielding calls and orders about the Rifts® Lemuria Megaverse® Insider offer all day long. Fantastic.

Sudden death. Just as I was getting ready to sit down to write this, editor Alex Marciniszyn came into my office with the surprising news that his brother-in-law, Gary Bobbish, had suddenly passed away. Struck down by a massive heart-attack completely out of the blue. Gone before the ambulance could get him to the hospital. The doctors worked on the poor guy for an hour, but could not revive him. It was a shock to say the least. I spent a few hours helping Alex and visiting the family to pay my condolences. Gary leaves behind a wife, four daughters and a brother. Our sympathies and condolences go out to Diane and the entire Bobbish family.

UPDATE: Rifts® and Hollywood. I have spent a considerable amount of time this past week discussing the potential for the future of the project. It's difficult to say what is going to unfold over the next few months, but the past week has been pretty wild and exciting. As usual, I cannot disclose any details, at least not at this time, but I'll keep you posted as much as I can, when I can.

SOMETHING NEW. Rifts® and Hollywood, Part Two. We were contacted by another filmmaker who wants to include some of our books in the background of a movie as props and set dressing. How cool is that? Can't say anything more about it right now either, but I wanted to share. It seems there remains considerable interest and increasing buzz for Rifts® and Palladium Books. I love it.
